CONSTITUTION DAY REQUIREMENTS TO REMAIN TITLE IV FINANCIAL AID ELIGIBLE

Rhonda Mohr

Higher education institutions must offer educational programs about the Constitution on September 17 (Constitution Day) in order to remain eligible for Title IV funding, thanks to a provision by Sen. Robert Byrd (D-WV) that was slipped into a 2004 spending bill. When September 17 falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, Constitution Day shall be held during the preceding or following week. The law and accompanying regulations are incredibly flexible, allowing institutions to do just about anything to commemorate the Constitution's birthday and remain Title IV eligible. In years past, institutions have taken full advantage of the flexibility given resulting in diverse educational events at campuses that is matched only by the diversity of institutions in the U.S.

This training and orientation is an opportunity for program directors or coordinators who are new to their respective programs to learn about program history and requirements, and to hear from and dialogue with their peers and experienced colleagues. The trainings are designed to accommodate those assigned to a program in the last two years (since 2014-15). For more information, including registration deadlines, please visit <http://extranet.cccco.edu/Divisions/StudentServices.aspx>.

STUDENTS WITH FOOD AND HOUSING INSECURITIES

Margaret Ortega

The experiences of students facing hunger, or lack of access to nutritious meals has been estimated to be up to 21% or higher of the community college student population. The number of community college students struggling with food insecurities and homelessness is not known and very little information or research is available on this student population. A greater understanding of these issues affecting community college students is needed. This fall, Student Services Division will begin initiating contact with colleges to identify the most pressing issues and concerns students with food insecurities and housing instability encounter, such as: what services and programs are available at the colleges, creative ways colleges have responded to supporting students with food insecurities and housing instability, what is in place to assist students in finding a path out of hunger and housing instability. The Student Services Division will launch a survey in the fall and host two regional conferences on this topic.

A MESSAGE FROM THE VICE CHANCELLOR OF EDUCATIONAL SERVICES

I want to give a "shout out" to our colleague Craig Justice, CIO at Irvine Valley College, who retired as of yesterday! Craig had a 40 plus year career instructing students and colleagues. He became a trusted friend to many, who gave sage advice when needed and was always ready for a great conversation regarding the essence of what we do! He and I will be working together at the upcoming LACCD Leadership Institute in October. Although he is recuperating from knee surgery, I know he isn't really finished doing this great work we are involved in. Congratulations Craig!

In the next few weeks you will be hearing from me about the California Promise. I look forward to seeing many of you at upcoming meetings and convenings.

Enjoy your Labor Day!

Pam
