<http://www.doingwhatmatters.cccco.edu/FullyOnlineCommunityCollege/Events.aspx>

Hosted by the Institute for the Future, policy representatives from the social justice, higher education, adult education, immigration, employer, labor, economic and workforce development are asked to engage in a design thinking process to identify areas of innovation for the California Community College system as we lead the way for working learners with a fully integrated online college. The culmination of the process is a 2-day workshop to identify future forces likely to shape low-income access to on-line learning, surface signals of change, and identify new needs, challenges, and opportunities for action to drive innovation for online learning.
